

pregnancy and Hot Moms Club present

new mom's HANDBOOK

Must-Haves

Nursery

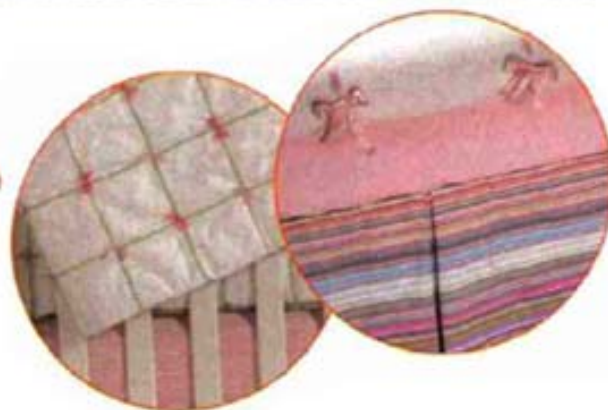

Do the kid's room right

Whether you prefer to stay neutral or you're going all-out girl or boy, HGTV design expert Krista Watterworth will help you create a cool space for your little one

Krista says:

“Wood, not white, is a good rule of thumb, even for girls.”

Many companies, like Pottery Barn and IKEA (see the crib on this page) offer wonderful wood finishes. No need to purchase from their “kid” lines! I recently used an IKEA wardrobe in a birchwood finish for a child's room, and dressed it up with a removable tree decal in white. Buy it cheap and make it chic! 🍓

EngageEnvironments
3-Piece Bedding
Set in Hopscotch,
$650, csnbaby.com

Krista Watterworth is HGTV's host of Save My Bath and an interior design expert. She's also the mother of 1-year-old Griffon. For more tips, check out her blog at roomrecipes.com.