

THE NEW YORKER

REPORTING & ESSAYS

ARTS & CULTURE

HUMOR

FICTION & POETRY

THE TALK OF THE TOWN

ONLINE ONLY

MACY HALFORD: I'm dreaming of a lovely Lovely Rita bookshelf to mount on the wall behind my sofa. It's part of a series of sprawling, whimsical shelves from the design firm Ron Arad. There's also the creepy-crawly bookworm, which comes in a variety of shapes and sizes, but the Lovely Rita is more feminine (maybe I'm just reflexively responding to the name), and I love how it kind of keeps going, like a thought that has no end. Also, it's not that expensive. (The bookworm starts at $425; the Rita is $285. Available at Allmodern.com.)