

Do It Yourselves Do It All With A Pressure Washer

Pressure Washers Emerge As The Ultimate Tool For Summer '08

There are few absolute 'must haves' when it comes to maintaining a home and garden - the lawn mower, the ladder, the basic small tool set, a wheelbarrow, a rake, and a shovel. But this year, we're seeing more people than ever add another one to this list – the Pressure Washer.

“DIYers are singing the praises of the pressure washer in greater numbers this year,” says Andrew Pierce, CSN Stores' Tools Expert. “It's turning into the 'how have we lived without this' tool of '08.”

With its countless capabilities, it's a surprise so many homeowners have lived without one, at least until now. When many people think of a pressure washer, they figure it's best for big tasks, like cleaning clapboards before a paint job, washing down a driveway, cleaning a boat, ridding gutters of leaves, and restoring decks.

While that's all true, today's pressure washer is more more versatile and can help with those nagging, small maintenance chores, as well. Many models come equipped with:

- Interchangeable water nozzles perfect for cleaning the grill, the patio, teak furniture, lawnmowers, swing sets, and everything else outside that may need a wash.
- A compartment for detergent and soaps, eliminating the need to hand scrub or wash a car.
- A chemical injector for spraying pesticides and weed killer. This is a great way to keep gardens healthy and brick and cobblestone walks clean and foliage free.

At EveryPressureWasher.com, one of 200+ CSN Stores, you can find the widest selection of commercial and residential pressure washers on the Web. Check out an electric washer from Campbell Hausfeld or Kranzle USA for high performance, yet affordable models.

For more serious DIYers, a gas pressure washer might be a better option. These machines, such as the Briggs and Stratton Cold Water Gas Pressure Washer, are designed for more demanding activities. They are essential for large areas, stubborn stains, and hard to reach surfaces.
