

What Biker Gangs Use to Make Smoothies

It's got a stainless steel frame and chromed handlebars. A gas powered, 43cc, two-stroke variable speed engine. And an 85oz stainless steel "tank". You can't ride it, but it will mix a mean drink.

The Gas Powered Party Blender is the ultimate in testosterone-induced tailgate gear. With its ability to gas up and go where those electricity-sucking blenders can't, this bad boy brings the party anywhere you want it. And keeps it going by whipping up over a half-gallon of party juice in one shot.

I can see it now: roving bands of leather-clad blender gangs terrorizing stadium parking lots and pools across the country.

Asylum FOR ALL MANKIND

Hey Dad, How About a $275 Gas Blender for Father's Day?

Gear — Booze — Weird — Ka-Ching!

allbarstools.com

With gasoline prices being so low these days ($11/gallon if you're in Turkey), it's the right time to invest in the gas-powered party blender.

This beast will make up to 10 cups of your favorite beverage infused with the power of a 43cc, two-stroke variable speed engine.

Perfect for: tailgate parties; making margaritas after the power goes out.

It's available (with stainless steel pitcher) for $275 (free ground shipping). If you order one now, you might just get it in time for Father's Day.

No word about when they plan to come out with a hybrid version, or maybe diesel for those of us who love a gas fume buzz with our drinks.
