

GADGETS

The latest in gear
for work and play

C2 Climate Control, $280,

www.csnstores.com

If the space around your cubicle is too hot or too frigid, try this compact device, from Herman Miller, the designer that brought you the ubiquitous Aeron chair. Enjoy personal temperature control with this desktop necessity. The small unit uses thermal electric technology (it is not a space heater) to cool the air and also heat it when the office is too cold. It filters the air, too.